C. EDWIN DOWLIN, State Librarian

1973/74 Fiscal Year

The Honorable Jerry Apodaca
Governor of New Mexico
State Capitol Building
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Governor Apodaca:

It is our pleasure to welcome you as our new governor with a glimpse of the State Library's services and a resumé of our accomplishments during the 1973/74 fiscal year.

Our financial status was not unlike the New Mexico climate — months of drought, then suddenly an unexpected flash flood. For nearly two years, library programs were planned and budgeted then pared to the bare bones as the Federal administration impounded federal library funds. When a successful State-initiated law suit released the money, funds impounded over a two-year period arrived abruptly in March 1974, with the added pressure that the money be wisely encumbered by June 30 of the same year.

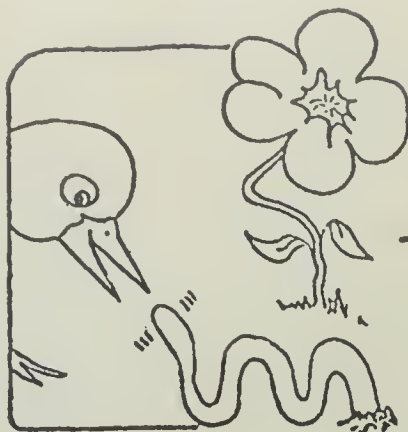

The staff rejuvenated plans, restored services, and mapped a series of new programs for long range impact on library services statewide. Among programs that began early in summer and will be completed during the present fiscal year are — book give-away programs for 2000 children in 21 rural communities around the state, services for senior citizens of northern New Mexico from our bookmobiles, tests of systems to step up interlibrary lending statewide, library demonstrations in small communities, and training workshops for librarians on serving the public, communications, audiovisual programming, and reviewing goals for better statewide library services.

While this intensive planning went on, the regular year-round services — bookmobile service to rural communities, library services for blind and physically handicapped people, help for institutional libraries, information services to legislators and government personnel, and interlibrary loans to other libraries — were carried on successfully.

Sincerely,

Dorothy E. Rosen, Chairman
New Mexico State Library Commission

C. Edwin Dowlin, State Librarian

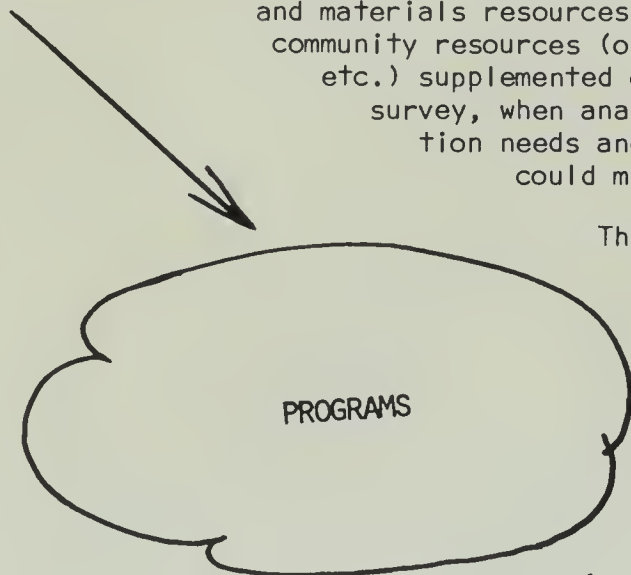

TURN UP SOMETHING NEW

Librarians were asking,
"How can we really satisfy the information requirements in our local communities?"

In answer to this question, State Library staff designed a guide that could help librarians assess information needs of local residents and plan responsive programs. A demographic analysis of the state formed the foundation for the "needs assesment model". A socio-economic profile of each community recorded population characteristics — such as size, ages, educational levels, types of industry and occupations, employment situation — found in U.S. census tables. A second profile described the public library facilities in terms of space and materials resources. A follow-up survey of local community resources (organizations, educations, emergency, etc.) supplemented census data. The profiles and survey, when analyzed, pinpointed areas of information needs and indicated potential services that could meet those needs.

This decision-making technique was demonstrated to libraries at workshops held in five areas of the state. Members of the Bureau of Business and Economic Research, University of New Mexico, were called in to bring current data about the state's economy and to preview other useful evaluation tools.

COMMUNITY IMPACT

ASSESSMENT...

SPINOFF

New Mexico Military Institute asked the State Library for an evaluation of the Institute library. An evaluation team undertook an on-site study that soon encompassed the other libraries in Roswell: school media centers, the public library, and the Eastern New Mexico University branch college. The team will attempt to measure the library community's ability to deliver information to city residents.

WHAT TO DO WHEN NEEDS ARE ASSESSED?

In planning stages are several workshops that will demonstrate effective communications techniques, ideas for advertising new library programs, and ways to garner public support. Following these workshops, an Inflation Fighter campaign will be launched by the public libraries all over the state.

STATE NEEDS FOR NATIONAL LIBRARY PROGRAM

The National Commission on Libraries and Information Science sought input from the Southwestern States for a national library program. How could New Mexico best communicate its unique requirements for bringing information to a tri-cultural people? to residents living in small scattered communities? to people struggling for existence in poverty stricken areas? to an isolated Navajo nation speaking eight dialects but very little English?

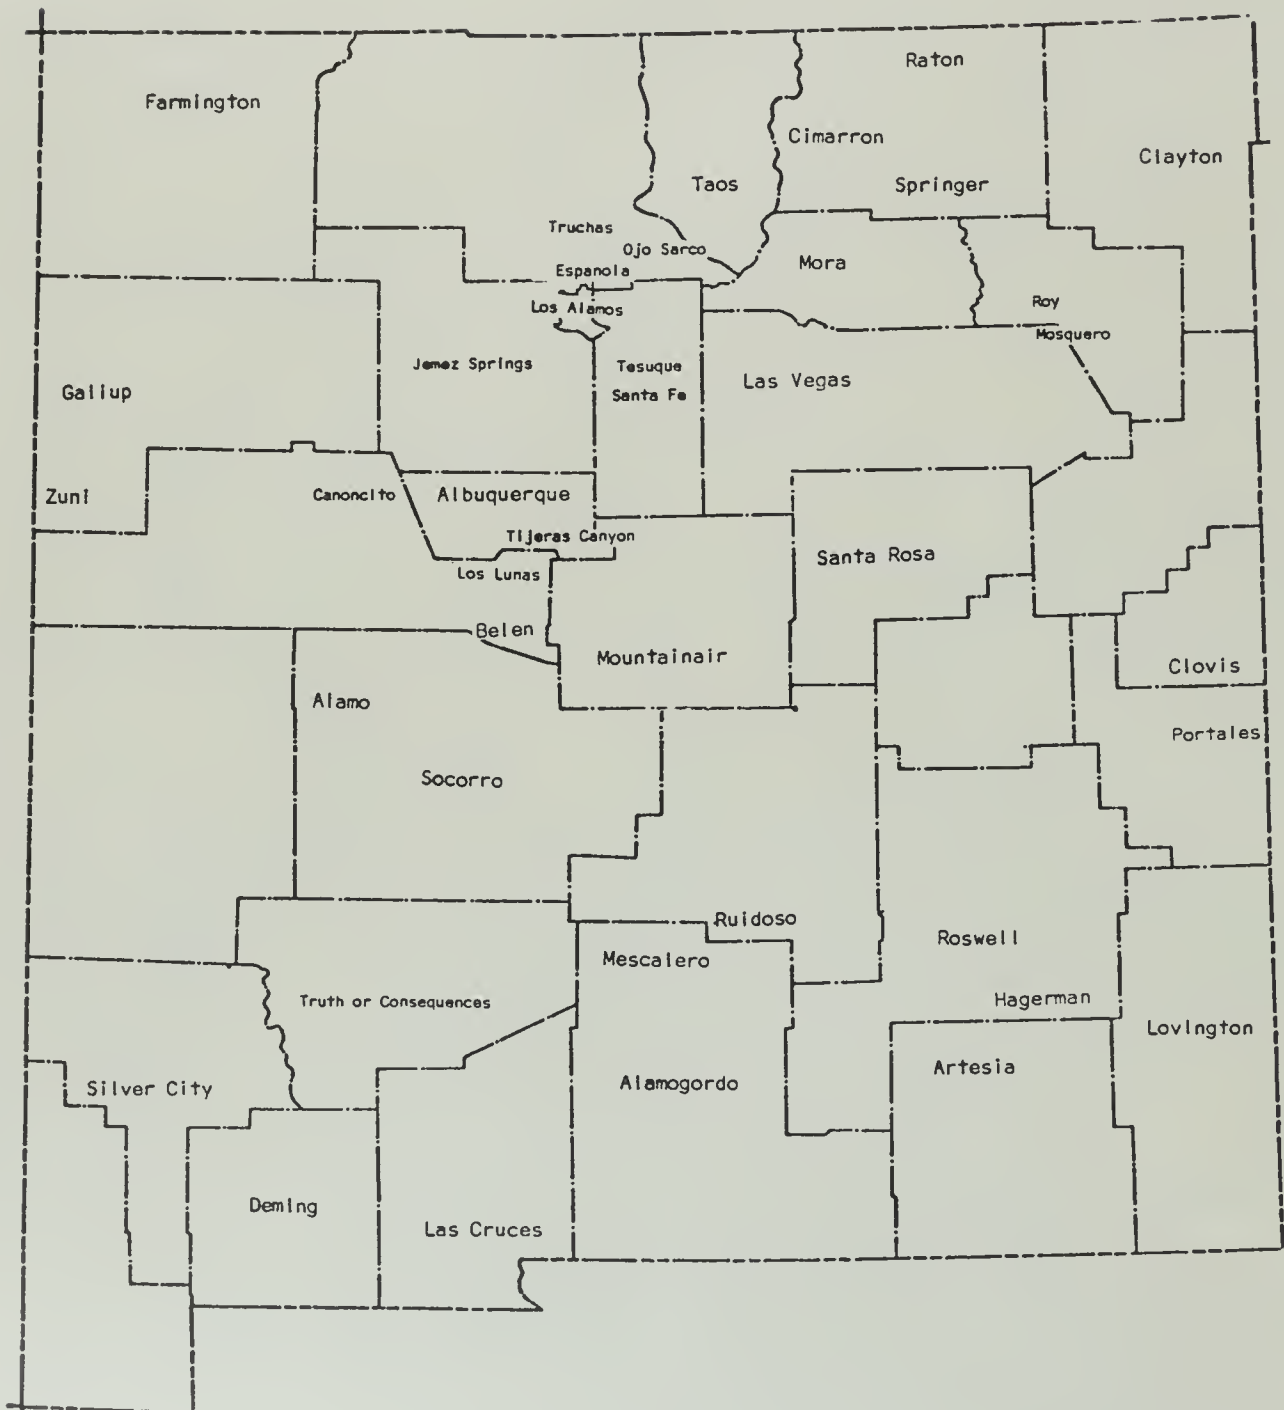

The National Commission held a state hearing for New Mexico presided over by one of its members. This one-of-a-kind mini-hearing took place at the annual meeting of librarians in Albuquerque on March 28, 1974. Twenty-two librarians and library users of diverse ethnic backgrounds testified for three hours before an audience of two hundred people.

The entire proceedings were video-taped. Later an one-half hour version was edited for presentation at the NCLIS Southwestern Regional Hearing in San Antonio, Texas, April 24, 1974. At this time, New Mexico's story was televised before the full Commission.

* LSCA IMPOUNDED FUNDS

Where the money went . . .

*Library Services & Construction funds were impounded for two years. At the end of June 1973, the State of New Mexico joined in a successful suit for release of impounded funds. The money for both FY 1972/3 and FY 1973/74 were received suddenly in the Spring of 1974. During the succeeding three months, the staff encumbered $387,628 for the above listed projects; most will be implemented in FY 75.

SPURS DECADE OF PUBLIC LIBRARY CONSTRUCTION

Preliminary model of Socorro
Public Library under construction

In ten years, the influx of $1,010,914 matching federal construction funds resulted in 19 public library building projects in New Mexico — twelve new libraries, seven enlarged/renovated.

Federal money for public library construction was first appropriated in 1964 as Title II of the Library Services & Construction Act and for the last time in 1973 when funds were impounded. Congress appropriated no library construction funds in FY 1974.

Impounded funds were released in Spring 1974; New Mexico's allotment was $149,000. The money was parceled out, on a matching basis, to five communities: Clayton, Clovis, Ruidoso, Socorro, and Zuni. Completion of library building projects are expected in 1975.

Driver, librarian, and 15-year-old bookmobile obstinately determined to bring books/films to isolated populations scattered over 40,000 square miles of northwestern New Mexico

REGIONAL BOOKMOBILES SERVE RURALITES

Northwestern Regional Library is but one of the State Library's six mobile units dispensing books and occasionally showing films in rural communities. This year the six bookmobiles logged 116,489 miles — a distance equivalent to 73 round trips along the Old Santa Fe Trail from Santa Fe to Independence, Missouri and back. A few roads are still as rough as the Old Trail and the old machines frequently breakdown. However, relief is on the way. Three new bookmobiles are on order for Northwestern, Northeastern, and Southwestern regional libraries, the latter a joint financial endeavor by Grant County/State Library. As for new paving, perhaps mañana.

With new vehicles and schedule revisions, the librarians will make more progress toward their objectives of increased service and contacts with patrons. By spending less time on the road, bookmobiles can stop in communities for longer periods of time, giving readers more opportunity for selecting books.

Rising petroleum costs prompted the re-evaluation of deposit stations and mailorder method of getting books to isolated communities. Every two or three months collections of 200-300 books are left in small communities not easily reached by bookmobile; local volunteers handle book lending operations. Eighty-two deposit stations were kept operational with rotating collections of 62,000 books. The mailorder program, not unlike the old-time catalog merchandizing businesses, won enthusiastic responses from readers when a new paperbacks were purchased with funds from the Public Library Assistance Act. BOOKS-BY-MAIL proved so successful in reaching isolated families that the test will was expanded to more geographic areas.

ASSESSMENTS turned up needs for more effective scheduling of bookmobile visits, audiovisual materials and bilingual programs. A reading program was started for migrant workers, many of whom spoke no English, in the southern part of the state.

Audiovisuals generated interest in many areas. Films were shown to elderly persons at Senior Citizen Centers in Elida. The bookmobile in northern New Mexico also visited Senior Citizen Centers, usually during the noonday meal (which was for many the only meal that day), and brought pictorial magazines, talking books, and musical records for the elders who did not read. Evening/weekend stops, complete with film shows, were introduced at northwestern pueblos. More convenient hours plus new AV programs really attracted young adults, and even entire families. At Zuni involvement was so complete, the community gradually took over the film showings. All bookmobiles helped local agencies distribute information on health, social security, medicare, etc. Bookmobile announcements/signs are bilingual.

CITY LIBRARIES SERVE COUNTIES

CITY/COUNTY LIBRARY SERVICE began last year. Santa Fe Public Library used LSCA seed money to extend bookmobile service in Santa Fe County. This year Albuquerque Public Library entered negotiations with Bernalillo County as well as the State Library for providing city library services to the county. The agreement included plans for renovating an old city bookmobile with LSCA funds and delivering mobile library service to county areas lacking library facilities. Next year Thomas Branigan Memorial Library plans bookmobile services beyond city limits; Las Cruces will assume costs for new mobile units.

Santa Fe Public Library plans further expansion of county services later this year. The BOOKS-BY-MAIL program, also funded with an LSCA grant, will be tested as a way to supply residents of Stanley with library services.

Children all over New Mexico felt the impact of READING IS FUNDAMENTAL, the program that helps children own their own books. The six regional libraries and eleven public libraries are promoting one hundred book give-away festivals throughout the summer and early autumn. Once again LSCA funds were instrumental in stimulating much needed library programs in New Mexico. The RIF Project will be carefully monitored, and an evaluation, complete with feedback from all participants, will be published after all books are given to the children.

Books By Mail!

Books have entered the lives of many rural people living in isolated pockets of New Mexico — places where television is non-existent...where the mail truck often comes only twice a week. In June, 759 families were getting library books in their mail boxes.

You would be welcome to stop for lunch or

You cannot know how much it meant to us for all the books you sent.

To help to entertain ourselves;

So nice to have them on our shelves.

We really do appreciate to have them brought right to our gate.

Many thanks and thanks some more.

I hope this letter finds you well.

By the end of the experimental year the demand for books by mail was great. Permanent funding is necessary if the mailorder program is to become a regular feature.

¡ LIBROS POR CORREO!

READING IS FUNDamental - RIF - came to New Mexico. Children were introduced to a variety of attractive inexpensive new paperback books and were invited to choose and keep the ones they liked best. By summer's end, nearly 2000 children would own books - many for the first time in their lives. RIF is a nationwide program designed to motivate youngsters to read through the experience of owning books.

Through RIF children develop a pride of ownership and learn, through self-discovery, that a wide range of treasures awaits them in books.

RIF programs are conducted across the country, usually by local civic groups. New Mexico is unique in that the State Library and State Planning Office introduced RIF to the state at a workshop in Santa Fe. LSCA grants were awarded to public/regional libraries to conduct programs in 21 rural communities — Taos, Roy, Mosquero, Santa Rosa, Alamo, Socorro, Alamogordo, Mescalero, Tijeras, Canoncito, San Antonito, Clovis, Springer, Tesuque, Farmington, Raton, Mountainair, Truchas, Ojo Sarco, and Espanola.

INSTITUTIONS SHARE LSCA $

State supported institutions house nearly 2,900 residents. A high percentage need lingual, incentive, and training resources; however, institutional budgets are low and development of libraries is slow. Four institutions do have trained librarians plus large collections of specialized books/audiovisuals to meet student needs; two are recruiting full-time trained librarians, and four libraries are developing increasingly effective roles in the institutions. When impounded LSCA funds were released, ten received program grants:

CARRIE TINGLEY HOSPITAL, Truth or Consequences	$1,000

LOS LUNAS HOSPITAL & TRAINING SCHOOL	$1,500

Twelve hundred New Mexicans are currently using talking books. This year the staff mailed 34,137 talking books to individuals plus 2,100 to hospitals, nursing homes, schools, libraries and other agencies for patients and special readers.

Braille books can be ordered directly from the Western Multi-State Braille Center in Salt Lake City, Utah, a service subsidized by the New Mexico State Library. Readers of braille can reach the Center by calling the toll free telephone number 800-153-5520

INFORMING LEGISLATORS & CITIZENS. The energy crisis and public school finance were but two issues making headlines as the Thirty-First State Legislature, Second Session, convened in Santa Fe. In calling legislators' attention to current information on public issues, the State Library staff compiled bibliographies of recent publications available to them at the library. In a similar vein, when librarians around the state asked to have more access to State agency publications, a feasibility study for setting up a State documents depository system was begun. Also on the drawing board is a demonstration of a computerized information retrieval system for State government publications.

While book borrowing from the State Library remained relatively constant (30,302 books borrowed), requests for information arose to 11,000. The staff was able to handle the 36% increase in reference traffic, but for lack of funding, terminated ongoing current-awareness programs for government agencies. Multimedia learning resources continued to be popular. Audiences of 1,519,239 school children, civic groups, and public library patrons viewed 35,713 showings of our film collection which still numbers only 1,100 16mm films. Eighty new films were acquired; however, an equal number had worn out. Civic groups and public librarians, for whom the State Library is the only free film-lending resource, were discouraged to find desired titles had already been booked by our largest consumer, the schools. Some video equipment was purchased to tape oral history, workshops, meetings, and inservice training programs for State agencies as well as other libraries. A series of workshops scheduled in early winter will give librarians hands-on practice at running/caring for audiovisual equipment, making filmstrips and planning AV programs.

SHARING RESOURCES WITH NEIGHBOR STATES. The State Librarian and key staff members strongly supported sharing information on regional and national levels, and actively participated in program planning through the Chief Officers of State Library Agencies, the American Library Association, Rocky Mountain Bibliographic Center, Southwestern Library Association, and Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education. New Mexico successfully helped spearhead the addition of library schools to the WICHE exchange programs, and, for the first time, students from New Mexico enrolled in the WICHE library school program. Library news for/about New Mexico libraries is circulated by the Hitchhiker, a one-page newsletter published each week by the State Library.
